Dear Members,

The Cleveland Museum of Art is in an excellent position as we end the year 2014. Our new and renovated galleries are spectacular, our public programs continue to thrive and break new ground, and our visitors are finding that the new museum offers a range of experiences from quiet reflection to dance party. The variety of exhibitions on view this fall attests to the broad appeal of art: from Netherlands miniatures to Jennifer Bartlett’s room-sized installations, from Islamic textiles to Surrealist photography, from Jacob Lawrence’s series dedicated to the Haitian revolutionary Toussaint L’Ouverture to Frederic Church’s American landscape paintings and a celebration of the finest prints we have acquired during the past 25 years. And that’s only in this building—the Transformer Station hosts two more shows of contemporary work, one by Julia Wachtel and one by Anicka Yi.

The museum’s performing arts season is in full swing and similarly wide ranging, with a sound installation by John Luther Adams in St. John’s Church (about a block away from the Transformer Station), and concerts by the Oberlin Contemporary Music Ensemble, Royal Ballet of Cambodia, Calder Quartet, and Tallis Scholars. Cult-hero guitarist Marc Ribot accompanies Charlie Chaplin’s silent film The Kid and movies include a holiday film series titled The Persistence of Surrealism. We also look forward to the Winter Lights Lantern Festival and Holiday Circle-Fest, as well as a wealth of educational programs throughout November and December.

None of this would be possible without the generous contributions of a large number of supporters whose gifts help us enhance and share the museum. November marks National Philanthropy Month, a time to celebrate individuals and organizations making selfless contributions of time and dollars to nonprofits, including our museum. The November/December issue of this magazine is dedicated to that spirit of philanthropy.

Beginning on page 14 you will read about specific initiatives that philanthropic support has made possible—from the technology provided by Lubrizol that helped make it feasible for us to carry out conservation of our Caravaggio painting in the Julia and Larry Pollock Focus Gallery, to donations from Nancy Wolpe that have furthered the mission of the Print Club of Cleveland, to the major role the citizen-funded Cuyahoga Arts & Culture has come to play in assisting the museum and the arts community in this region. Profiles of individuals show how people choose to express their commitment to the museum through specific financial instruments.

Following those profiles are lists of the many people who have supported and continue to support the museum. You will no doubt find many people whom you know. New this year is a list of benefactors whose cumulative gifts over the years have played a major role in helping the museum to carry out its mission. We are deeply grateful to all of our supporters.

Sincerely,

William M. Griswold
Director

Forbidden Games: Surrealist and Modernist Photography Through January 11, 2015, Smith Exhibition Hall. This exhibition debuts more than 165 recently acquired photographs from the 1920s through the 1940s that demonstrate the Surrealist concept of viewing the world through “the eye in its wild state.”

Supported by a grant from the Robert Maplethorpe Foundation and developed in part through the generosity of Mark Schwartz and Bettina Katz.

The Believable Lie: Heinecken, Polke, and Feldmann Through November 30, photography gallery. Works investigate the role of photographic imagery in consumer society, reviving Surrealist aesthetics along the way.

Jacob Lawrence: The Toussaint L’Ouverture Series Through January 4, 2015, prints and drawings gallery. Lawrence’s acclaimed monumental series chronicles the slave revolt that emancipated Haiti from European rule, thereby establishing the first black republic in the Western Hemisphere.

Courtesy of the Aimstad Research Center, New Orleans, LA.

Maine Sublime: Frederic Church’s “Twilight in the Wilderness” Through January 25, 2015, Pollock Focus Gallery. Church’s stunning masterpiece is showcased alongside nearly 25 of his sketches recording Maine’s rugged interior, rocky coast, and windswept islands, some on public view for the first time.

The Diana Partnership, Hudson, NY, and New York State Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation, Albany, organized Maine Sublime.

Epic Systems: Three Monumental Paintings by Jennifer Bartlett Through February 22, 2015, Smith Gallery. Three monumental paintings span the entirety of the artist’s significant career. Due to the large scale of these works, two of the pieces in the exhibition will rotate. Recitative is on view through November 4 and Song starting on November 22. Rhapsody remains on view the entire run of the show.

Constructed Identities December 14, 2014–April 26, 2015, photography gallery. This exhibition examines how photography has been used to construct identities, from the creation of fictional characters and the posings of rock stars to the polishing of politicians’ public images.

TRANSFORMER STATION

Julia Wachtel Through January 17, 2015. Rising to prominence in the early 1980s, Julia Wachtel focuses on her artistic practice on the visual language of mass culture. The first institutional solo exhibition in 20 years, Julia Wachtel features the works for which she became known as well as recent paintings.

Anicka Yi: Death Through January 17, 2015. In 2013 Anicka Yi began a trilogy of exhibitions to explore, as she has written, “the forensics of loss and separation,” creating works inspired by the very human emotions we attach to loving and heartbreak: Denial, Divorce, and now Death.
Forbidden Games
The museum’s Raymond collection of Surrealist and modernist photographs is now on view

L’œil à l’état sauvage (the eye in its wild state) was a key tenet of surrealism, the literary and artistic movement founded in Paris in 1924. The surrealists believed that seeing in a manner untamed by tradition and unshackled from convention and morality could yield a truer (though not necessarily more factual) picture of the external world and the internal workings of the human mind.

Art collector, dealer, and filmmaker David Raymond spent a decade assembling a group of photographs from the 1920s through the 1940s that exemplified for him that raw, unfettered way of seeing. Acquired by the museum in 2007–08, this important collection of surrealist and modernist photography makes its public debut in Forbidden Games. Especially remarkable for its breadth, this set of over 165 rare photographic works demonstrates the widespread, international impact of the surrealist impulse by representing 68 artists from 14 countries in the Americas and across Europe.

The photographic world between the two world wars was fertile, complex, and chaotic. Three movements—surrealism, modernism, and documentary photography—competed for center stage, yet the boundaries between them were porous and blurred, with many photographers employing all of the styles. Raymond found stellar examples of “the wild eye” in work from all three movements.

Chance encounters with the bizarre in everyday life could be captured and preserved through the documentary approach, in which unmanipulated images objectively record the external world. A “wild eye” could discover the surreal during an amble down a Paris street or a glance through a microscope. The Hungarian-born Brassai, a photojournalist championed by the surrealists, produced a survey of the underground subcultures of nocturnal Paris. One of his best known images was taken at a large drag ball held regularly in Paris and attended by people of every class, race, and

There he glimpsed “two young men wrapped in each other’s arms [who] had to demonstrate the perfect union of their souls, their bodies—dressed in a single suit: one was wearing the jacket, with his legs and buttocks naked; the other wore the pants, his torso and feet bare, since he had given his boyfriend the only pair of shoes.” His only aim as a photographer, Brassai said, was “to express reality, for there is nothing more surreal than reality itself.”

Photography’s supposedly unbreakable ties to reality were happily severed by surrealist and modernist photographers. These movements shared a desire to experiment with radical subject matter, viewpoints, processes, and techniques. Among the photographers’ ploys were staging scenes and extensively manipulating images in the camera or in the darkroom. An exquisite example of darkroom manipulation is Dora Maar’s haunting Double Portrait with Hat from about 1936–37. The Raymond collection includes 23 of Maar’s photographs, giving Cleveland the largest institutional holdings of her work in this country and the second largest in the world.

From the 1940s until the 2000s, Maar was known primarily as one of Picasso’s lovers and muses. Before she met him, she had been a respected, successful Parisian commercial and fine art photographer. In 1936 she became his paramour and helpmate. She documented the creation of Picasso’s masterwork Guernica and was teaching him a photographic print process when she began work on Double Portrait. To make this complex montage, Maar cut out and sandwiched frontal and profile negatives of the same model scavenged from her commercial work—a magazine assignment on spring hats. She painted onto the negative and scraped off patches of its emulsion, suggesting disintegration. Although the face is not hers, it is tempting to see the image as a self-portrait depicting a woman torn between her career and independence and her lover’s demands and potent personality. By 1938, Picasso had convinced her to abandon photography in favor of painting, a medium in which she could never outshine him. When Picasso ended their affair, Maar had a mental breakdown. She never returned to photography.

Instead of taking their own photographs, a number of the artists in Forbidden Games cut “readymade” photographs from books and magazines and pasted them onto a backing sheet to create collages. The technique was a favored surrealist gambit because it was ideal for free association: jarring juxtapositions and impossible variations in scale could be achieved without concern for the constraints of the physical world. The Russian avant-garde turned to collage to promote radical cultural, political, and social agendas. In Film Design from the mid-1920s, Vasilij Komardenkov has Freud (whose Theories inadvertently spawned surrealism) inspecting a young woman's breast while she playfully tickles a younger gentleman. The collage, which advertises the Worker's House movie theater, would have been reproduced in print and posted around town. How appropriate to employ collage, a technique brought into fine art in the 1910s, to promote a cinema, since film itself was a relatively new medium. Several photographers in the Raymond collection also experimented with motion pictures. Three screens in the exhibition galleries present rotating selections of their short films.

The Cleveland Museum of Art made a major, transformative acquisition by procuring the Raymond collection, one of the most important holdings of 20th-century surrealist photography that remained in private hands. Forbidden Games offers the public its first chance to view these works and vicariously experience an exhilarating, sometimes harrowing period of revolutionary social and cultural change.

The Toussaint L’Ouverture Series

Jacob Lawrence’s dynamic chronicle of the Haitian revolutionary’s exploits

As one of the great American modern artists, Jacob Lawrence (1917–2000) brought to life important historical events and contemporary scenes through a striking style of elemental forms and expressive colors. Among his notable achievements are works in extended series tackling heroic stories and themes. The first of these monumental efforts, The Life of Toussaint L’Ouverture, is showcased this fall in our prints and drawings gallery. Consisting of 41 individual tempera-on-paper compositions—for which Lawrence also composed numbered captions—the series chronicles Toussaint’s exploits in commanding the slave revolt that led to Haiti’s emancipation from European rule in 1804, thereby establishing the first black republic in the Western Hemisphere.

Born in Atlantic City and reared near Philadelphia, the teenaged Lawrence moved to Harlem in 1930, an especially propitious place and time for a budding artist. There he received the bulk of his training within the African American community of creative figures who manifested the Harlem Renaissance. He studied at the Harlem Art Workshop and Studio, and at the Harlem Community Art Center, further honing his skills as a member of the Federal Art Project, a government-funded program established to employ artists during the dire economic years of the Great Depression. Influenced by a prevailing aesthetic philosophy of the New Negro movement well under way at the time, the young Lawrence developed the belief that art should embody a quest for both self- and communal identity.

While attending lectures and reading books at the 135th Street Harlem branch of the New York Public Library, Lawrence became fascinated with black historical subject matter, which had not been part of his formal educational curriculum. His pursuit of history was both academic and inspirational; indeed, he was steadfast in believing that the past has considerable relevance for the present. Regarding his motivation for addressing the Haitian Revolution, Lawrence stated in 1940: “I didn’t do it just as an historical thing, but because I believe these things tie up with the Negro today. We don’t have a physical slavery, but an economic slavery. If these people, who were so much worse off than the people today, could conquer their slavery, we certainly can do the same thing.”

Influenced by storytelling techniques derived from film, the Toussaint L’Ouverture series unfolds episodically and kaleidoscopically, presenting scenes at various locations, during various times, and from various points of view. Each scene was carefully orchestrated for content; before picking up his brushes, Lawrence spent several weeks poring over biographies of Toussaint’s life, as well as historical and socioeconomic accounts of Haiti. Like a screenwriter, the artist emphasized, condensed, or omitted narrative details in order to underscore his overriding message. For Lawrence, Toussaint’s prominent roles in commandeering the Haitian Revolution and drafting the country’s new constitution epitomized the ability of an authoritative individual to bring about major social change.

Evident throughout the series is Lawrence’s strong acumen in manipulating shapes and colors to communicate with clarity and emotion. Demonstrating his penchant for dynamic yet cohesive patterning, the artist repeated colors and motifs in order to unify the sequence across its individual images. By employing flat shapes bereft of shading and cast shadows, he eliminated extraneous detail and strove for greater legibility. A pronounced sense of graphic design predominates throughout, so when viewed in their totality the 41 images generate a cumulative visual power, an upshot rendered even more forceful by the intimate spaces of our prints and drawings gallery.

Created in 1937–38, when Lawrence was just 20 years old, the Toussaint L’Ouverture series launched the artist’s career on a national stage, and its success provided momentum to further elaborate his aesthetic vision. For the next six decades, Lawrence continued to harness the power of abstracted forms to address significant social issues, and a host of gallery and museum exhibitions amplified his fame. At the time of his death at the age of 82, he was among the most distinguished artists in the nation.
Provenance Research

The Ingalls Library and Museum Archives is a world leader in discovering the ownership histories of works of art.

Provenance, the history of the ownership of a work of art, is not only an account of that work’s whereabouts from the time of its creation until the present day, it can also assist in establishing authenticity and understanding the history of collecting. In a collecting institution such as the Cleveland Museum of Art, provenance research is essential, and it is critical that the museum both pursues the history of its collections as a core activity and disseminates the research findings. Although provenance research is conducted on works of art that could have followed any chain of ownership in any location during any time period, attention is typically focused on works of art that may have been confiscated or lost during the Nazi era. While the European paintings selected for research do contain provenance gaps during the years 1933–1945, it is important to note that such gaps do not necessarily indicate that a work was involved in the systematic plunder by the Nazis of art and other objects.

In March 2013, the Ingalls Library and Museum Archives launched an exciting pilot project to research the provenances of approximately 60 paintings in the museum’s American and European (1500–1800) collections. The project was generously funded by the Sarah S. and Alexander M. Cutler Director’s Endowment Fund and the CMA became one of only a handful of U.S. museums to have a full-time provenance researcher.

Since the inception of the project we have systematically reviewed the extant provenance histories for this group of paintings, correcting errors and conducting extensive additional research in order to fill in gaps in their ownership histories. The results of this research will be published on the museum’s website at www.clevelandart.org/research/in-curatorial/provenance-research. Due to the nature of provenance research, the provenances on the website will reflect the current state of research and will be updated as additional research is completed and new discoveries are made.

The Ingalls Library and Museum Archives, one of the largest art research libraries in the United States, is ideally positioned to support this research. Its wide-ranging collection, with over 490,000 volumes, includes monographs, current periodicals, and long runs of ceased periodicals, as well as auction and dealers’ catalogues, microforms, electronic publications and databases, and clipping files. The archives include the administrative records of museum offices and staff members, as well as manuscript collections that document the interactions of the museum with significant figures, such as dealers and collectors, and other institutions within the art world.

In April 2014 the museum received a $50,000 matching grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to expand this project to a second year to include an additional 48 works of art, this time from the museum’s collection of modern European paintings (1800–1960). Thanks to the grant we have continued to add to the known provenance histories of this group of works. To engage the community with this research, the museum will initiate a wide range of interpretive activities, including: convening a public seminar on provenance research led by well-known provenance experts; creating a mobile tour of the collections based on compelling provenance histories; providing docent training on provenance issues which can be incorporated into gallery tours; presenting a public workshop on resources available here for provenance research; and presenting lectures on provenance research for graduate students in the CMA/CWRU Joint Program in Art History and Museum Studies.

In addition to taking advantage of the vast resources available at the Ingalls Library and Archives, we consult records and documents at both the National Archives and Records Administration in College Park, Maryland, and the Archives of American Art in Washington, D.C. Archival material at the National Archives is a treasure trove for researching assets looted by the Nazis from victims of the Holocaust. These records are consulted by provenance researchers and by historians, journalists, academic researchers, parties involved in litigation, and others attempting to document Holocaust-era looting. The Archives of American Art, a division of the Smithsonian Institution, maintains the records of numerous American collectors, artists, galleries, and dealers, making it an essential resource for tracing works of art that were owned or sold in the United States.

Our research efforts are aided by the ever-growing collections of archival material that are available in electronic and digital formats and by the generosity of art dealers and galleries who deposit their records in publicly accessible archival repositories and who correspond regarding additional provenance information from their in-house records or their own recollections. Given the rich collections of research materials available at the Ingalls Library and Museum Archives, combined with resources from other institutions, we have been able to amend and piece together the provenances of works in the museum’s collection and then make that information available not only to the Cleveland community, but also to researchers and scholars around the world.

View of Florence 1837. Thomas Cole (American, 1801–1848). Oil on canvas; 99.5 x 160.4 cm. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mariatt Fund 1961.39. This painting was owned in the mid-19th century by Henry James Sr., father of the novelist Henry James who, in his 1913 memoir, recalled seeing the painting in the family’s Manhattan home. The painting left the James family’s possession around 1855, when they moved to Europe. Its whereabouts are unknown until sometime in the early to mid-20th century, when it turned up in the window of an antique store in New York City and was purchased by an as yet unidentified collector.

PERSONAL FAVORITE

Eva Meurier in a Green Dress

1891. Maurice Denis (French, 1870–1943). Oil on canvas; 55 x 38 cm. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Marlatt Fund 2002.92. In gallery 223. From his nursing job at the nearby VA hospital, Cole often walks over to visit the galleries.

Christopher Cole, RN Every time I visit the museum I make a trip to see Eva Meurier in a Green Dress by Maurice Denis. I don’t like portraiture at all, normally, but this is one of my favorite pieces in the museum. I like the fact that it has been intentionally left unfinished. Up in the right-hand corner you can see the painting that was there before, that he painted over. It just sort of dissolves. In the foreground there are flowers painted, but they are just floating there—no vase. And then he didn’t paint all the way to the edges, as if maybe he painted over the older piece while it was still framed. He signed it, so it looks like he got to a point and just said “I’m done.” I know French artists of the time were influenced by Japanese prints, so maybe he liked the idea of a work being perfect in not being complete. Or, in my mind, there’s another possible side story that he just didn’t feel like finishing it. Maybe he didn’t like his sister-in-law and just put a half-hearted effort into it. Since it’s a family member, it really makes me wonder about the back story. She looks kind of plain; he didn’t romanticize her, that’s for sure.

I bring people here because to me the painting verges on modern. It really is different from everything in the area. You could almost take it and go hang it in the Surrealist area and it would fit right in.

To me the Cleveland Museum of Art is the premier cultural institution in Cleveland and is always the first place I recommend to visitors from out of town. I believe the museum is an amazing resource for all of Cleveland because of the lack of an admission charge. Any person at any time can simply walk through the doors.
A gift of technology: special conservation equipment arrives thanks to a grant from the Lubrizol Foundation

The purchase of specialized equipment for Conservation in Focus: Caravaggio’s “Crucifixion of Saint Andrew” was made possible through a grant from the Lubrizol Foundation, the corporate giving arm of the Lubrizol Corporation. A strong supporter of the Cleveland Museum of Art since 1970, Lubrizol, a technology-driven global chemical company, supplies products to customers in the transportation, industrial, and consumer markets.

The company’s founders were pioneering in their philanthropy to support many University Circle institutions. “Lubrizol continues to focus on improving the communities in which our employees live and work,” says James L. Hambrick, the company’s chairman, president, and chief executive officer. “We are a proud partner of the Cleveland Museum of Art and support its ongoing commitment to education and to bringing the pleasure and meaning of art to a broad audience.”

Visitors to the museum this past summer witnessed firsthand the conservation of one of the museum’s most important works, with the process moving from behind closed doors into a gallery. The equipment enabled the conservation team to work much as they would in the main laboratory, allowing for much greater precision in analyzing the painting’s condition.

“The generous donation allowed us to document the painting for conservation and art history scholars,” says Per Knutsén, the museum’s Eric and Jane Nord Chief Conservator. “Lubrizol understands the crucial component of investigating the materials of works of art through science, which is very similar to what their researchers do with their own products.”

The exhibition proved quite popular, drawing more than 30,000 visitors to the gallery over a three-month period. The purchased equipment has subsequently been reinstalled in the painting conservation lab as work continues on the Caravaggio and other paintings in the museum’s collection. “We welcome this opportunity to bring the power of science to maintaining one of the world’s great masterpieces,” Hambrick says. The Lubrizol grant allowed the museum to meet all facets of its focus: community engagement, scholarship, and artistic excellence.
Donor reveals boundless passion and philanthropy

For donor and volunteer Nancy Wolpe, the Cleveland Museum of Art is a home away from home. “In fact, when the museum was closed for construction, I almost felt homeless,” she chuckles.

Her relationship with the museum began when she and her family moved from Detroit to Cleveland. At first Nancy was an infrequent visitor, bringing her stepdaughter to studio classes and enjoying casual walks through the galleries. But when her husband passed away just four years after their relocation, she made the decision to make her home in northeast Ohio. Always having had an outlet for volunteerism, Nancy gravitated toward the museum.

Shortly after her husband’s death, Nancy’s neighbor, who was a member of the Print Club of Cleveland, encouraged her to attend a meeting. Nancy recalls thinking: “I don’t know anything about prints!” Fast forward to today and you will find her in the prints and drawings office every Tuesday, a longtime and dedicated Print Club volunteer who in 2012 financed a film documenting its history.

Nancy’s involvement with the Print Club illustrates a central tenet of her character: she pursues her interests with tenacity. “Nancy is a very special and generous person because she gives so freely of her resources, time, and energy,” says Jane Graubinger, curator of prints. “She is a devoted volunteer for the Print Club of Cleveland and the museum and cares deeply about supporting cultural activities that help maintain the vibrancy and allure of the city.”

To be sure, Nancy has been inspired to support multiple areas of museum activity. Most recently she made gifts in support of the museum’s expanded community engagement efforts as well as to the capital campaign. “I try to keep up with what’s needed, what’s going on, and what’s new. Giving can be contagious. . . . I always encourage others to support the museum and to tell their friends to do the same,” she says, “Every year I try to increase my membership because I know that’s helpful.”

Not leaving any area of giving untouched, Nancy has also made a planned gift to the museum. She explains that after being a member of the museum for several years she learned about different giving vehicles and thought, “I can do that. I can leave the museum something in my will.”

In conversation, Nancy is nonchalant about her philanthropy, but when probed further about the merit of the initiatives and programs she has supported, her infectious enthusiasm emerges. Underlying all of this is a passion for the artwork itself. “What’s my favorite piece? It depends on the day I’m here,” she says. “When I listen to [photography curator] Barbara Tannenbaum, or really any of the curators, give a talk, I become so interested in what’s in that gallery. It is a real pleasure to be part of this great museum, which I love.”
CUYAHOGA ARTS & CULTURE

Cuyahoga Arts & Culture (CAC), the public funder for arts and culture in Cuyahoga County, awards more than $15 million annually to arts and cultural organizations through grant programs adjudicated by a panel of diverse arts and cultural professionals from outside our region. The museum has consistently performed well during this review process, and it currently receives approximately $1.5 million in funding annually. Outside of the museum’s own endowment funds, CAC funding represents the single largest contribution to the museum’s unrestricted operating funds. These dollars are even more important in today’s philanthropic landscape as operating support has become less available in recent years.

CAC funds are generated through a dedicated excise tax on cigarettes which was approved by voters in 2006. This unique funding mechanism has allowed CAC to invest more than $112 million in 239 arts and cultural organizations during its eight years of existence. Since its revenue is from public dollars, CAC strives to ensure that all of the investments that it makes provide clear benefits to area residents.

“Cuyahoga Arts & Culture is proud to support the Cleveland Museum of Art, not only because the museum’s extraordinary collection and exhibitions have been enriching our community for nearly 100 years, but also because it continues to demonstrate its commitment to building a deep and long-lasting relationship with Cleveland-area residents,” says Karen Gahl-Mills, executive director of Cuyahoga Arts & Culture. “The museum’s dedication to both high-quality community programs and deep-rooted community engagement is exemplary, and we are happy to play a small part in the museum’s success.”

In partnership with the county’s arts and culture community, CAC is planning to seek renewal of this tax levy in late 2015 or early 2016, so that it can continue to fund community-based arts and culture programming at the museum and throughout Cuyahoga County for another ten years.

JESSE HALL

Donor finds harmony in charitable gift annuity

“My love of classical music goes back to my childhood,” says donor Jesse Hall, now in his 60s. “In junior high we would occasionally take a field trip to the Cleveland Orchestra; afterwards we would stop by the museum.” Today, however, Jesse’s visits to the museum are anything but an addendum.

The retired financial analyst reveals that the two cultural institutions have always played an important role in his life, but that it wasn’t until he came across classical music reviews by Wilma Salisbury, a reporter for the Plain Dealer, that he was enticed to attend a performance. Afterwards, Jesse was sold on the quality of the museum’s musical programming—so much so that he decided to make a special gift in support of it.

A precise and thoughtful individual, Jesse cites three specific museum performances that inspired his giving: a jazz orchestra performance in the ’70s, a free chamber concert of Tchaikovsky’s work in Gartner Auditorium in the mid-1980s, and a 1999 performance by the Cavani String Quartet that was narrated by Dee Perry. “It was magic,” he says of the last.

In addition to larger main stage performances, you will find Jesse at many of the weeknight music performances in the museum’s galleries, a free program that features young musicians from the Cleveland Institute of Music and Case Western Reserve University’s early and baroque music program. “Every concert I’ve attended has been magnificent,” he shares.

Knowing that the performing arts series and the gallery concerts in particular are sustained largely through individual contributions, Jesse elected to create a charitable gift annuity in support of the program. The arrangement made great sense for Jesse because it helps the museum that he’s loved for a lifetime and also provides him a steady stream of income. “I contributed to the performing arts program,” he says, “to help ensure that others will have lasting and cherished memories of outstanding musical performances at the museum.”

In addition to providing significant support for a particular program area, donors who choose to give through a charitable gift annuity also have the benefit of receiving a fixed monthly or quarterly payment during their lifetimes. To learn more about charitable gift annuities and other planned giving options, please contact Diane Strachan at dstrachan@clevelandart.org or 216-707-2585.
Mother and daughter make giving a family affair

It’s somewhat of a rarity to find this mother-daughter duo, Emma and Cathy Lincoln, at their Shaker Heights home. Instead, they are likely getting their passports stamped everywhere from Italy to Japan, often returning to Cleveland long enough to repack their suitcases before they are once again jet-setting.

Yet despite their busy travel schedules, both mother and daughter have found ways to become wholly immersed in the life of the museum. “It’s such an integral part of our lives,” Cathy muses. “It’s like your left arm . . . I couldn’t imagine not having it there!”

As an artist specializing in wearable art, Cathy is an active member of the Textile Art Alliance. Emma, now in her 90s, has been a member of the museum for several decades. Both women recently joined the Legacy Society, a recognition group for donors who have made a commitment to the museum in their estate plans. They also extended their support to the museum’s building and renovation campaign, coming together to make a significant joint gift.

The Lincolns’ motivation for supporting the museum can be traced back to Cathy’s childhood when Emma would schedule frequent mother-daughter trips to the museum. In particular Cathy remembers a special museum lecture series organized for the Women’s City Club, an organization to which her mother belonged. “We were at the museum every week at least once a week,” she shares. “The education staff presented the most wonderful lectures [for the club] on textiles, jewelry—a different subject each week.”

In addition to childhood memories, their support of the capital campaign seems to be at least in part inspired by a pride of place they have developed through their travels. “We love the addition and the atrium,” Cathy says. “I equate it to the British Museum glass atrium; there’s the same stunning sense of space.”

Bringing two of their passions together, Cathy and Emma recently traveled with Sinéad Vilbar, curator of Japanese and Korean art, to Japan where they had the opportunity to see the exhibition Admired from Afar: Masterpieces of Japanese Painting from the Cleveland Museum of Art at the Tokyo National Museum. “It was wonderful to see the iris screen, because it was in storage during the renovation,” Cathy says. “Seeing it in Japan was like seeing an old friend.” While the pair circle the globe, Cathy is quick to point out that Cleveland and the museum are always top of mind. “We travel quite a bit,” she says, “and everyone knows and loves the art museum. We always tell them about how fantastic it is. It’s such an important part of our city.”

Although the Lincolns are passionate, longtime supporters of not only the museum but numerous other organizations, they are unassuming about their philanthropy. Instead, Cathy brings the conversation back to her rather personal experiences with the museum’s collection. “When the Asian galleries reopened it was so amazing to see works I hadn’t seen in years,” she says. “It was very, very special. You want to be a part of something so fabulous. We didn’t have to think long about making a gift.”
Unrestricted gifts allow the Cleveland Museum of Art the flexibility to deploy funds where they are needed the most. Gifts made to the Annual Fund through Donor Circles, Supporting Circles, and the Annual Appeal are a critical resource for operating support and enable the museum to be responsive to opportunities for growth. Donors who choose to support special project areas also facilitate exploration of the three pillars of the museum’s mission: scholarship, artistic excellence, and community engagement. We are proud to recognize the following individual donors who have supported the museum in one or both ways during the last fiscal year, from July 1, 2013 through June 30, 2014. For more information about individual giving, please contact Cindy Kellett, director of individual giving, at ckellett@cleveandart.org or 216-707-2755.

THE LEGACY SOCIETY

Members of the Legacy Society are among the most visionary donors to the Cleveland Museum of Art. By including the museum in their estate plans, these individuals are making an enduring promise that enables the institution to carry on the mission and vision of its founders. Planned gifts may include the museum as the beneficiary of a bequest, life insurance policy, retirement plan, trust, charitable gift annuity, or real estate. We are exceptionally grateful to the following individuals for their foresight in including the Cleveland Museum of Art as a part of their lifelong planning. For more information regarding legacy giving, please contact Diane Strachan at 216-707-2585 or dstrachan@clevelandart.org.

The following list salutes the individuals, families, and organizations whose named endowment funds for art purchase, specific purpose, and operations provide an assured source of income for the museum and serve as an eternal symbol of their generosity and foresight. Please contact Marjorie Williams at 216-707-2481 or mwilliams@clevelandart.org for further information.

New activity in 2013-14 in italics.
The Cleveland Museum of Art greatly values its foundation, government, and other organizational relationships. These donors represent valuable and significant collaborations among like-minded and long-standing institutions dedicated to promoting economic and community development through arts and culture. The museum welcomes and seeks to develop additional partnerships that will allow the museum to better fulfill its mission. Please contact Linas Vysniauskas at 216-707-6876 or lyvsniosius@cleveandart.org for additional information about involving your institution. As model philanthropic organizations, the following local, regional, and national funders recognize the benefits of partnering with an international treasure like the Cleveland Museum of Art, and we appreciate their generous support.

OUR CORPORATE PARTNERS SUPPORT A VARIETY OF PROJECTS, FROM EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION PROGRAMS TO THE UPCOMING EXHIBITION PAINTING THE MODERN GARDEN: MONET TO MATISSE.
Gifts to the capital campaign have transformed the Cleveland Museum of Art. After more than a decade of planning and execution, all the expanded galleries and public spaces are open and prepared to greet audiences for the next chapter of the museum’s history. We owe this to the generosity of donors whose gifts to Transformation: The Campaign for the Cleveland Museum of Art supported the Voinovich building project and the renovation of the 1916 building façade and terrace. This list represents all gifts between July 1, 2001 and June 30, 2014.

Benefactors of the Cleveland Museum of Art stand at the pinnacle of philanthropic commitment. Their support is demonstrative of an important, and often lifelong, relationship with the museum as well as a deeply held belief in its mission. Gifts from our founding benefactors sustain the museum to this day, yet each year new donors step forward to continue that great tradition. Together, they construct a philanthropic lineage that allows the museum to flourish. We are proud once again to list our benefactors—individuals, foundations, and corporations whose lifetime cumulative gifts of cash, stock, and payments on pledges total $100,000 or more.

This list reflects available museum records through June 30, 2014. Every effort is made to accurately calculate totals and list donor names. If you have a question or comment regarding your listing, please contact Diane Strachan at 216-707-2353 or dstrachan@clevelandart.org.

CIM/CWRU Joint Music Program
Wednesday, November 5 and December 3, 6:00. Now in its fourth season, the popular series of monthly, hour-long concerts in the galleries features young artists from the Cleveland Institute of Music and the joint program with Case Western Reserve University’s early and baroque music programs. Outstanding conservatory musicians present mixed programs of chamber music amidst the museum’s collections for a unique and intimate experience. These concerts are free to all, and programs are announced week of the concert at clevelandart.org.

Oberlin Contemporary Music Ensemble Saturday, December 13, 2:00, Gartner Auditorium. With special guests Jennifer Koh, violin and Darrett Adkins, cello. Program: Richard Wernick, Concerto for Cello and 10 Players; Harrison Birtwistle, Cartege; Giacinto Scelsi, Anahit.

Upcoming Oberlin CME performances: Saturdays at 2:00, March 7, April 11. Each program $5, CMA members and students free.

John Luther Adams: Veils and Vesper Through November 29, St. John’s Episcopal Church, Ohio City. These two distinct but related electronic pieces from 2005 are extraordinarily beautiful works meant to be heard successively or concurrently. When the two, as here, are installed together (thus comprising six hours of slowly evolving soundscapes), the listener creates a personal “mix” by moving through the space, basking in the harmonic colors of each individual piece, or taking in the more oceanic whole. Presented in the recently restored St. John’s Episcopal Church in collaboration with the Episcopal Diocese of Ohio, Adams’s installation is a sounding environment and oasis in the middle of the city, what Kyle Gann in PostClass called “calming, beautiful . . . an invitation to a crepuscular frame of mind.”

See clevelandart.org/jla for visiting hours.

Oberlin Contemporary Music Ensemble Saturday, November 1, 2:00, Gartner Auditorium. Expanding a collaborative partnership with our neighbors down the road, CMA welcomes the Oberlin Contemporary Music Ensemble for a series of compelling programs under the baton of Tim Weiss. Oberlin Conservatory, long a wellspring of contemporary classical music and the birthplace of award-winning chamber groups such as Eighth Blackbird and the International Contemporary Ensemble (ICE), is a treasure in the northeast Ohio region—in no small part due to the ambitions and success of Weiss. He is the recipient of the Adventurous Programming Award from the American Symphony Orchestra League, and in his 19 years as music director of the Oberlin Contemporary Music Ensemble has brought the group to a level of artistry and virtuosity in performance that rivals the finest new music groups.

Program: Luke Bedford, Wonderful No-Headed Nightingale; Phil Cashian, Creeping Frogs Flying Bats and Swimming Fish; Morton Feldman, Three Clarinets, Cello and Piano; Sean Shephard, These Particular Circumstances, In Seven Uninterrupted Episodes.
ROYAL BALLET OF CAMBODIA

Wednesday, November 5, 7:30, Gartner Auditorium. Renowned for its graceful hand gestures and stunning costumes, the Royal Ballet of Cambodia, foremost exponent of the style also known as Khmer Classical Dance, has been closely associated with the Khmer court for over 1,000 years. Its repertoire perpetuates the legends associated with the origins of the Khmer people. An orchestra accompanies the dance, and a female chorus provides a running commentary, highlighting the emotions mimed by the dancers, who were considered the kings’ messengers to the gods and to the ancestors. $69–$53, CMA members $62–$48.

CALDER QUARTET

Wednesday, November 19, 7:30, Transformer Station. Winners of the 2014 Avery Fisher Career Grant, the Calder Quartet is known for the discovery, commissioning, and recording of some of today’s best emerging composers. The group’s distinctive approach is exemplified by musical curiosity, whether it’s Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn, or sold-out rock shows with bands like The National or the Airborne Toxic Event. Known here for their groundbreak-

LIVE MUSIC SOUNDTRACK

Marc Ribot accompanies Charlie Chaplin’s “The Kid” Sunday, December 14, 1:30, Gartner Auditorium. The New York Times hails guitarist Marc Ribot as “a deceptively articulate artist who uses inarticulateness as an expressive device.” On more than 20 albums under his own name over a 30-year career, Ribot has explored everything from the pioneering jazz of Albert Ayler to the Cuban son of Arsenio Rodriguez. He works regularly with producer T Bone Burnett and composer John Zorn, and has recorded with Neko Case, Solomon Burke, John Lurie’s Lounge Lizards, Caetano Veloso, Norah Jones, The Black Keys, and many others. For this Family Day program, Ribot performs an original, live soundtrack to the 1921 silent comedy classic, Charlie Chaplin’s The Kid. $12, CMA members $10, students/kids FREE (with accompanying adult ticket).

TALLIS SCHOLARS

Thursday, December 11, 7:30, Gartner Auditorium. Director Peter Phillips founded the Tallis Scholars in 1973. Through recordings and concert performances, the ensemble has established itself as the leading exponent of Renaissance sacred music throughout the world. Among many accolades and awards, their recording of Josquin’s Missa De beata virgine and Missa Ave maris stella received a Diapason d’Or de l’Année (2012) and in their 40th anniversary year they were welcomed into the Gramophone “Hall of Fame” by public vote. Their Cleveland program features Josquin’s Missa Gaudeamus and works by Byrd and Turgis. $55–$42, CMA members $50–$38.

TYO

The Cleveland Orchestra Youth Orchestra (TYO), founded in 1994, has grown into an essential part of the CMA and Cleveland cultural scene. TYO provides an outstanding introduction to professional performance for a select group of young instrumentalists. The TYO’s 2016–2017 season features active participation by the Tallis Scholars, a benefit concert for TYO, and solo roles in the Cleveland Orchestra’s Gauss and Dukas programs. Performing with the Cleveland Orchestra is a powerful and lasting experience for young musicians, as well as a foundation for TYO’s diverse repertoire. The benefit concert takes place on Thursday, January 5, 2017, at 7:30 p.m. in Severance Hall.
RECENT RELEASES

Unless noted, all films are shown in the Marley Lecture Hall and admission to each movie is $9; CMA members, seniors 65 & over, students $7; or one CMA Film Series voucher.

Le Chef Sunday, November 2, 1:30 & 3:15. Directed by Daniel Cohen. With Jean Reno. When a trendy new restaurant owner intends to downgrade his establishment’s “3 star” rating and then fire the longtime chef, the cook rallies to preserve his job and his classic cuisine. This delightful French concoction should not be confused with the recent American film Chef. “A very funny movie” —San Francisco Chronicle. Cleveland theatrical premiere. (France, 2012, subtitles, 84 min.)

Advanced Style Friday, November 7, 7:00; Sunday, November 9, 1:30. Directed by Lina Plioplyte. This new documentary profiles seven unique New Yorkers, aged 62 to 95, whose eclectic, unique sense of style and joie de vivre are challenging conventional ideas about beauty, aging, and youth. (USA, 2014, 72 min.)

Executive Producer David Raymond

David Raymond is more than a prominent photography collector who once owned the work in the Forbidden Games show; he has also produced some acclaimed independent films. (Two of them, Severed Ways: The Norse Discovery of America and Mother of George, have shown at CMA.) Here are three more, all Cleveland theatrical premieres.

DAVID RAYMOND IN PERSON!

Restless City Wednesday, November 5, 7:00. Directed by Andrew Dosunmu. In this vivid portrait of New York’s pan-African community, a Senegalese immigrant living on the fringes of NYC looks for work but dreams of making music. David Raymond will answer audience questions after the screening. (USA, 2011, subtitles, 80 min.) Preceded at

Through a Lens Darkly: Black Photographers and the Emergence of a People Wednesday, November 19, 7:00. Directed by Thomas Allen Harris. This overview of African American photography (and of how blacks were previously stereotyped and demonized in pictures) was inspired by Deborah Willis’s 2002 book Reflections in Black. “An inexhaustibly fascinating subject”—NY Times. Cleveland premiere. (USA, 2014, 90 min.)

A Master Builder Friday, November 21, 6:30; Sunday, November 23, 1:30. Directed by Jonathan Demme. With Wallace Shawn, Julie Hagerty, and Andre Gregory. In this film version of a Wallace Shawn adaptation of a Henrik Ibsen play (created for the stage by Andre Gregory), a dying, egomaniacal architect tries to make amends for a lifetime spent bullying, manipulating, and misleading those closest to him. “A bold endeavor… There is muscle and volume in the performances” —New Yorker. Cleveland premiere. (USA, 2013, 130 min.)

MARC RIBOT ACCOMPANIES

The Kid Sunday, December 14, 1:30. See page 35 for full information.

A Five Star Life Friday, December 19, 7:00; Sunday, December 21, 1:30. Directed by Maria Sole Tognazzi. With Margherita Buy and Lesley Manville. A single, childless, middle-aged woman who travels the world and lives in perpetual luxury as an undercover hotel critic begins to wonder whether life has anything more to offer her. Cleveland theatrical premiere. (Italy, 2013, subtitles, 85 min.)
THREE REDISCOVERED FRENCH CLASSICS

A Room in Town Wednesday, December 3, 7:00. Directed by Jacques Demy. With Dominique Sanda, Danielle Darrieux, and Michel Piccoli. Never released theatrically in America despite being nominated for nine Césars (French Oscars), this all-singing melodrama is set during a crippling labor strike in 1950s Nantes. New digital restoration! Cleveland theatrical premiere. (France, 1982, subtitles, 90 min.)

Level Five Wednesday, December 10, 7:00; Friday, December 12, 7:00. Directed by Chris Marker. This inquiry into history and memory by the late, great cine-essayist centers on a computer programmer who’s researching the Battle of Okinawa for a video game. “Passionate and cerebral . . . There is nothing else in theaters now that feels quite as new” —NY Times (2014). Cleveland premiere. (France, 1997, subtitles, 106 min.)

Judex Wednesday, December 17, 7:00. Directed by Georges Franju. In this sound remake of Louis Feuillade’s 1916 silent serial, the mysterious, black-clad avenger of the film’s title targets a banker who has swindled many. New digital restoration! (France, 1963, subtitles, 104 min.)

Three classic French films by three major directors, two never released theatrically in the U.S.

2014 HOLIDAY FILM FESTIVAL: THE PERSISTENCE OF SURREALISM

Clockwise from right The Blood of a Poet, Daisies, and Mulholland Dr.

December 26-31, 1:30 pm. Essential classics from nine decades of surrealism cinema, for adults only.

The Blood of a Poet Friday, December 26, 1:30. Directed by Jean Cocteau. The inner life of a poet/artist is vividly manifested on screen in Cocteau’s dreamy, experimental, visually stunning first film. (France, 1932, subtitles, 55 min.) Preceded at 1:30 by Luis Buñuel and Salvador Dali’s 20-minute Un Chien Andalou (France, 1929), the most famous (and shocking) of all surrealist films.

Daisies Sunday, December 28, 1:30. Directed by Vera Chytilová. Two bored young women thumb their noses at modern consumer society in this anarchic, visually inventive masterpiece of the Czech New Wave—a Dada movie that leaves viewers gaga. (Czechoslovakia, 1966, subtitles, 76 min.) Preceded at 1:30 by Jan Švankmajer’s 16-minute animated short Food (Czech Republic, 1992).

Mulholland Dr. Tuesday, December 30, 1:30. Directed by David Lynch. With Naomi Watts and Laura Elena Harring. Voted best film of the 2000s in three separate critics’ polls, David Lynch’s mysterious, menacing, mesmerizing tale of two young actresses in contemporary Hollywood takes as many twists and turns as the eponymous road. (France/USA, 2001, 147 min.)

Dreams That Money Can Buy Saturday, December 27, 1:30, Recital Hall. Directed by Hans Richter. This experimental narrative feature about a man who can create and sell dreams incorporates fantastic sequences by a who’s who of Surrealist/Dadaist artists: Max Ernst, Fernand Léger, Man Ray, Marcel Duchamp, Alexander Calder, and Richter himself. Music by John Cage, Darius Milhaud, Paul Bowles, et al. (USA, 1947, 99 min.)

Holy Motors Wednesday, December 31, 1:30. Directed by Leos Carax. With Denis Lavant, Edith Scob, and Eva Mendes. This rapturous valentine to the movies tells of a mysterious French businessman in a stretch limo who dons different disguises for a surreal series of theatrical “appointments” around Paris. (France/Germany, 2012, subtitles, 115 min.)
WINTER LIGHTS LANTERN FESTIVAL AND HOLIDAY CIRCLEFEST

JENNIE JONES BOOK SIGNING

Saturday, December 6 and Sunday, December 7, 3:30-5:00. Between summer 2012 and winter 2014, legendary Cleveland photographer Jennie Jones and her assistant Stuart Pearl sought to capture every aspect of the life of the CMA as the building project came to completion. This book is the fruit of that effort, rounded out with the best recent images by museum staff and freelance photographers, to create a rich visual portrait of the Cleveland Museum of Art. Meet Jennie in person at a members-only book signing during Members Appreciation Weekend, December 6 and 7.
IN THE GALLERIES

Guided Tours NEW TIME! 1:00 daily, plus Saturdays and Sundays at 2:00, and Tuesday mornings at 11:00. Join a CMA-trained volunteer docent and explore the permanent collections and nonticketed exhibitions. Tours and topics selected by each docent (see clevelandart.org). Meet at atrium desk. Free.

Forbidden Games Guided Tours 2:00 daily in November and December, plus Tuesdays at 11:00 (1:00 on November 2 only). Meet at info desk. Limit 30; free tour ticket required.

Art in the Afternoon Second Wednesday of every month, 1:15. Docent-led conversations in the galleries for audiences with memory loss; designed to lift the spirits, engage the mind, and provide a social experience. Free, but preregistration required; call 216-231-1482.

Art Bites Get some food for thought with Art Bites! These bite-size talks are unique explorations of the galleries inspired by your favorite books, television shows, and more, all in 30 minutes or less. Meet at atrium desk.

There and Back Again Thursday, November 20, 12:30; Friday, November 21, 6:00. Venture out of your hobbithole for an adventure through the collections. Visit dragons as fearsome as Smaug and marvel at treasures worthy of the King under the Mountain!

Earth Kings and Fire Lords Thursday, December 18, 12:30; Friday, December 19, 6:00. The cartoon Avatar: The Last Airbender drew heavily on the history and culture of China, Japan, and India. Check out real-world equivalents in this tour of the galleries.

SPECIAL REPEAT! Inside the Believable Lie Wednesday, November 19, 6:00. Join guest curator Lisa Kurzner in a look at the exhibition The Believable Lie: Heinecken, Polke, and Feldmann. Free; meet at atrium desk.

The Inside Scoop: Twilight in the Wilderness Wednesday, December 10, 6:00. Frederic Church’s Twilight in the Wilderness is one of the museum’s most beloved paintings. Mark Cole, curator of American painting and sculpture, discusses how this esteemed work came to Cleveland and its history as a part of the collection.

LECTURES

Select lectures are ticketed. Call the ticket center at 216-421-7350 or visit clevelandart.org.

Author Talk: Francine Prose Sunday, November 2, 2:00, Gartner Auditorium. Explore relationships between art and literature with author Francine Prose, who discusses the photographer Brassai’s influence on her latest novel, Lovers at the Chameleon Club, Paris 1932 (available in the museum store). Brassai’s photographs of Parisian nightlife, featured in the exhibition Forbidden Games, inspired Prose to explore the city’s jazz clubs and subcultures to create the story of athlete and scandalous cross-dressing lesbian Lou Villars. The author of 20 works of fiction, Prose won the Dayton Literary Peace Prize and was a finalist for the National Book Award. Free; reservations recommended. A book signing will follow the talk.

Ian Walker: From Cleveland to Cleveland via Paris Saturday, November 8, 11:00. British photohistorian Ian Walker recounts how the very first exhibition devoted to Surrealist photography was staged in Cleveland in 1979. The subject now returns here in Forbidden Games. Walker, a contributor to the show’s catalogue, addresses the range of ways in which the Surrealists photographed the paramount Surrealist city, Paris, from the center to the periphery, and the different methods through which those images were exhibited and published.

Frederic Church’s Paintings of Maine Saturday, November 22, 2:00, Gartner Auditorium. American art expert John Wilmerding looks at the large body of work Frederic Edwin Church produced over multiple visits to Maine between 1850 and 1880, during which time Church’s art gradually shifted from a national vision of landscape to a more personal and private expression. Central to this story is his magisterial painting Twilight in the Wilderness in the Cleveland Museum of Art. Wilmerding, Sarofim Professor of American Art (Emeritus) at Princeton University, is a trustee of the Guggenheim Museum, the Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art, and the Wyeth Foundation for American Art, and was appointed by President Obama to the Committee for the Preservation of the White House. He also held posts at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Free; reservations recommended.

Jacob Lawrence’s Toussaint L’Ouverture Series Friday, December 12, 7:00. Patricia Hills, professor emerita of American art and African American art at Boston University, discusses the art of Jacob Lawrence in conjunction with the exhibition Jacob Lawrence: Toussaint L’Ouverture. Hills is the author of Painting Harlem Modern: The Art of Jacob Lawrence (2010). Free.

JOIN IN

Winter Break Fun @ Gallery One  Ongoing throughout December (museum closed December 25 and January 1). Trade in those winter blues for play as we experience Gallery One. Join in our games, explore the art in new ways, and make your mark on the museum through participatory projects. Check www.clevelandart.org for a full listing. Activities include museum madlips, secret decoder games, exploration kits, and the chance to share your ideas about our art.

Art Cart  Select Sundays, 1:00-3:00. Wearing gloves and guided by the Art to Go team, enjoy a rare opportunity to touch specially selected, genuine works of art in an informal, intergenerational, and self-directed format. Group sessions can be arranged for a fee. Call 216-707-2467.

Oodles and Oddies of Lines and Shapes  Sunday, November 9, 1:00-3:00. Explore how, throughout time, artists around the world have made objects relying on three fundamental visual elements: line, shape, and form.

Sources of Light  Sunday, December 7, 1:00–3:00. Observe how artists and cultures around the globe have found beautiful ways to illuminate our world.

Repeat, Repeat, Pattern, Pattern  Sunday, December 14, 1:00–3:00. Discover how repetition—an element of form, color, or motif—enriches our pleasure in objects and adds to their beauty in striking ways.

Make & Take: Craft with Style  Second Wednesday of every month, 5:30–8:00. Drop in and join others in the atrium and participate in simple craft projects. Learn new techniques and grab a drink! Suggested donation $5.

Art Garlands  November 12

Pom Pom Making  December 10

LiterArti: The Summer Prince  Tuesday, November 18, 7:00–8:00 at the Underdog (below Happy Dog in Gordon Square) and Saturday, November 22, 11:00–12:00 at the museum. Alaya Dawn Johnson sets her tale in the midst of the vibrant city of Palmare Tres, where June Costa creates art that’s sure to make her legendary. But her dreams of fame become something more when she meets Enki, the bold and handsome new Summer King. Go beyond the printed page with LiterArti, our new discussion group for devoted readers and art lovers. Share your thoughts on our selected read (books, short stories, and graphic novels related to art of all styles, types, and periods) at the Happy Dog, then come to the museum and explore real-life art related to the story. No registration required. Drop-ins welcome! Suggested donation $5.

Art to Inspire Your Writing  Saturday, January 10, 10:00–5:00. In this one-day workshop, participants will use the museum’s collections for inspiration and reflection. Led by Ginny Taylor, certified journal instructor and creative writing instructor at Hiram College, this unique experience includes visits to the galleries, directed exercises, examples from literature, and plenty of space for individual writing time. Writers share their words at the day’s conclusion. Writers of all levels welcome! Registration required. $95, CMA members $75.

STROLLER TOURS

Third Wednesdays, 10:30–11:30. You’ll need a baby in tow if you want to join this casual and lively discussion in the galleries—just for parents and caregivers and their pre-toddler age (18 months and younger) children. Expect a special kind of outing that allows for adult conversation where no one minds if a baby lends his or her opinion with a coo or a cry. Tours limited to 10 pairs. Free; preregistration encouraged. Meet in the atrium.

What’s for Dinner?  November 19

Images of the Season  December 17

SECOND SUNDAYS

Second Sundays, 11:00–4:00. Bring your family to the Cleveland Museum of Art on the second Sunday of every month for a variety of family-friendly activities including art-making, Art Stories, Art Cart, scavenger hunts, and more—no two Sundays are the same!

Photo Frenzy November 9. Use found objects to create rubbings inspired by Man Ray and turn the museum’s collection into your own Surrealist masterpiece. Enjoy Art Stories, Art Cart, and activities that celebrate Cleveland’s Collinwood neighborhood.

Snow Day! December 14. We’re taking inspiration from the winter wonderland outside the museum! Create your own magical watercolor-resist winterscape, help us create a collaborative three-dimensional snowscape, explore the galleries on a scavenger hunt, read and look during Art Stories, and touch real works of art—while wearing gloves—during Art Cart.

ART TOGETHER

Art Together is about families making, sharing, and having fun together in the galleries and in the classroom. Artworks inspire exploration of a wide variety of art techniques and materials. Whether you attend one workshop or participate in the whole series, we encourage you and your family to make art together.

Represent Yourself: Screenprinting Posters and T-Shirts Sunday, November 16, 1:00–3:30. In medieval times families had crests or coats-of-arms to visually represent themselves. In this workshop your family will collaborate on its own “logo” to print on t-shirts and poster cards. Bring your own shirts or purchase one of our blanks. Best for age 7 and up. Adult/child pair $36, CMA members $30; each additional person $10.

Wrap It Up Friday, December 12, 4:00–5:30. Create decorative papers, cards, and tags for all occasions using a variety of techniques, from stamping and stenciling to embroidery. We’ll take a quick visit to the galleries in search of colorful patterns to inspire us. Best for age 7 and up. Adult/child pair $24, CMA members $20; each additional person $10. Member registration begins November 1, nonmembers November 15.

Painted Landscapes Sunday, January 25, 1:00–3:30. CMA masterpiece Twilight in the Wilderness by Frederic Edwin Church is the inspiration for this workshop. We’ll learn various watercolor techniques and use them to capture the beauty of the natural world in painted landscapes. Adult/child pair $36, CMA members $30; each additional person $10. Member registration begins December 1, nonmembers December 15.

216-421-7350 or in person. More information: adultstudios@clevalandart.org or 216-707-2488. Supply lists available at the ticket center.

Cancellation Policy
Classes with insufficient registration will be combined or canceled three days before class begins, with enrollments notified and fully refunded. Refunds are issued anytime before the beginning of the session. After the first class, consideration will be given to refunds on an individual basis.

6 Saturdays, January 17–February 21, 10:00–11:30 or 1:00–2:30. Your child can discover the wonders of the CMA collection and unearth his or her creativity in the process. Each class visits our galleries every week then experiments with different techniques based on the masterpieces they’ve discovered. Students learn by looking, discussing, and creating.

Art for Parent and Child (age 3)
Mornings only. Four hands are better than two! Parents and children learn together while creating all kinds of art inspired by gallery visits. Limit 12 pairs.

Mini-Masters: Shapes (ages 4–5)
Children discover geometric and organic shapes in artwork in our galleries. Back in the classroom, they’ll make creative shapes from paper, fabric, paint, and who knows what else?

Buzz, Flutter, Slither, and Claw (ages 5–6)
Find animals, birds, and bugs in our galleries. Come and explore with us and then create these creatures out of all kinds of art materials.

Experiments with Art (ages 6–8)
Artists learn by experimenting with lots of different materials. We’ll look at some in our galleries and then practice with metal foil, various kinds of paint, papier-mâché, and others.

Time Travelers (ages 8–10)
Travel the world through our galleries, and learn about ancient cultures like Egypt and Greece, the Middle Ages, and the Americas. What was different? What’s the same? After our gallery travels we’ll make our own art from fabric, paint, clay, and more.

Start with the Basics 2 (ages 10–12)
We’ll build upon the basics and learn more about line, shape, color, and pattern by practicing. Practice makes perfect with paint, graphite and colored pencil, charcoal, and printmaking.

Painting Studio for Teens (ages 13–17)
Mornings, or sign up for the all-day workshop! Using works in our collection, students focus on different styles and techniques in watercolor and acrylic. (Lunch on your own in the building.) See pricing.

Claynation: Bring Art to Life! (ages 11 and up)
Mornings only. Create characters from armatures and polymer clay to populate and bring CMA images to life. Write your own story with these images as the stage. Then, utilize still cameras with our editing equipment to produce stop-motion animation shorts.

FEES AND REGISTRATION
Most classes $84, CMA members $72. Art for Parent and Child $96/$84. Claynation $150/$125. Teen Painting Studio $84/$72 morning or $150/$125 all-day. Registration for all studios is on a first-come, first-served basis. Member registration begins December 1, general registration December 16. Register through the ticket center: 216-421-7350. There is a $10 late fee per order beginning one week before class starts.

AN EASY WAY TO MAKE A LEGACY GIFT

Many people have made charitable gifts through the IRA rollover legislation that was in effect from 2006 to 2013, but it has yet to be renewed by Congress for this year (though that still could happen). However, there is another, indirect way you can make a charitable gift not only from an IRA but from other retirement plans such as a 401(k) or 403(b). And even if the rollover legislation is renewed, this plan might be a better alternative for some people.

Example: Patrick has to withdraw money from his IRA this year, and he would like to make a $50,000 gift to our organization. Included in his individual brokerage account is stock worth $50,000 with a cost basis of only $10,000. Patrick contributes that stock to us. Then he takes the mandatory cash withdrawal from his IRA and uses $50,000 of it to repurchase the stock he contributed. Now the basis of that stock is stepped up to $50,000. If he sells it in the future when it is worth $70,000, he will be taxed on $20,000 rather than $60,000 of gain. Alternatively, he could have purchased other stocks to rebalance his portfolio.

Assuming he can deduct the entire stock contribution, the deduction will offset the tax on the IRA distribution, resulting in no net tax.

For many people the simple, direct charitable transfer from an IRA will be the preferred option if it continues to be available. That law allowed persons aged 70½ and older to authorize their IRA administrator to make a direct transfer from their IRA to one or more charities. The amount transferred (which cannot exceed $100,000) is not included in taxable income and counts toward the mandatory distribution requirement. The transaction is very simple and appeals to those who do not need all of the income from their IRA and would like to make charitable gifts.

But for others whose retirement funds may be in a plan other than an IRA, who own appreciated securities, and who may not yet be 70½, the alternative that is definitely available for 2014 could be better. For more information contact Diane Strachan at dstrachan@cleveandart.org or 216-707-2585.
