FISCAL YEAR 2021

IMPACT REPORT

With Gratitude to Our Community
Letter from the Board Chair and Director

While the fiscal year that is the subject of this report was one of the most challenging in the history of the Cleveland Museum of Art, we have now recovered much of the ground we lost, thanks above all to your unwavering support. Your generosity ensured that we were able to sustain the world-class programs and community offerings expected of our institution. Despite some necessary, pandemic-related belt tightening, the fiscal year that ended June 30, 2021, was noteworthy for the museum, as well as for our staff and our trustees. We have much to celebrate.

We made numerous acquisitions, adding to our collection 358 outstanding works of art. These included a rare marble sculpture, Dido, by Aurelio Lombardo; four major pieces by Rose Iron Works, among them Paul Fehér’s famous Muse with Violin Screen; and Person by the Korean ink painter Suh Se Ok. We expanded our holdings of works by Black and other artists of color with screenprints by Barbara Jones-Hogu, Wadsworth Jarrell, and Amy Sherald, as well as photographs by D’Angelo Lovell Williams. Zilia Sánchez’s Troyanas (de la serie Módulos Infinitos), or Trojan Women (of the Infinite Module Series), expands our representation of contemporary Latin American art.

We are proud also to have reimagined two important suites of galleries. Visitors were able to experience a new approach to the story of contemporary art in our reinstalled contemporary galleries. There, new works, new walls, and new perspectives convey the evolving narrative of the art of our time, with an emphasis on diverse identities and viewpoints. In May, we reinstalled our Islamic galleries, which highlight objects from the 8th through 19th centuries from Spain, North Africa, the Middle East, and Central Asia. These include ceramics, metalwork, textiles, and works on paper.

In addition to new spaces, our curators and other staff organized a number of remarkable exhibitions. As did many of you, we used our time in quarantine to go through storage spaces. But instead of taking items to the curb, we assembled a compelling show, Stories from Storage, in early 2021. Featuring 20 curated “stories” spanning 3,000 years of art, the exhibitions provided a rare glimpse of the entire breadth and depth of our collection, put together in fresh and unexpected ways according to such themes as “Paper Airplanes” and “Open Windows.”

Other shows of note furthered our mission to foster deeper understanding of the world. Bruce Davidson: Brooklyn Gang presented the world through the eyes of outcast 1950s teenagers. Second Careers: Two Tributaries in African Art explored the connections between historical African art and contemporary practices. Fashioning Identity: Mola Textiles of Panamá focused on the vibrant fabrics of Indigenous Guna women.

One of our biggest accomplishments this year was reopening the museum in January 2021. Despite a period of closure, during the fiscal year we welcomed more than 210,000 visitors. We also ventured into the community, most visibly on June 12, when we opened a new Community Arts Center in the 20,000-square-foot former Astrup Awning factory, in the Clark-Fulton neighborhood on Cleveland’s near west side. The center is home to the museum’s community arts staff, classes, drop-in family activities, and educational outreach programs, as well as to some of the spectacular costumes and large puppets associated with Parade the Circle.

We are immensely grateful for your strong support. The amazing generosity of our most committed donors helped ensure the robust health of our beloved institution, preserving its legacy as a comprehensive art museum, a center for research, and a beacon for the community. You truly help us live up to our mission: “for the benefit of all the people forever.”

Thank you for your dedication to the Cleveland Museum of Art.

Sincerely,

Scott C. Mueller

July 2020
After a challenging spring, the museum reopened and extended its exhibitions: Tiffany in Bloom: Stained Glass Lamps of Louis Comfort Tiffany; PROOF: Photography in the Era of the Contact Sheet; Signal Noise: Aaron Rothman (at Transformer Station); Ilse Bing: Queen of the Leica; Gold Needles: Embroidery Arts from Korea; A Graphic Revolution: Prints and Drawings in Latin America; and Ana Mendieta: Ochun.

October 2020
Bruce Davidson: Brooklyn Gang opened. One of the most respected and influential American documentary photographers of the past half century, Bruce Davidson spent several months photographing the daily lives of a teenage street gang for his 1959 series Brooklyn Gang. This exhibition, in the Mark Schwartz and Bettina Katz Photography Gallery, featured 50 black-and-white photographs from that series, part of a recent anonymous gift to the museum of extensive selections from the artist’s archives.

November 2020
Second Careers: Two Tributaries in African Art opened, presenting objects from nine cultures in Central and West Africa that were juxtaposed with large-scale contemporary installations, sculptures, and photographs. The exhibition considered the status of canonical African art objects as they begin their “second careers” upon entering museum collections. It simultaneously examined modes of artistic production in Africa that employ mediums that once served other purposes in everyday life.

Fashioning Identity: Mola Textiles of Panama opened. This exhibition presented both individual mola panels and complete mola blouses from the collections of the Cleveland Museum of Art and Denison University in Granville, Ohio. A mola is a key component of traditional dress among the Indigenous Guna (formerly Kuna) women of Panamá. Guna women have been sewing mola blouses since the turn of the 20th century, and they have become powerful symbols of Guna culture and identity. The molas that were on display spanned distinct periods of Guna history, from the era of the 1925 revolution to the 1980s.

Share Your Story launched. The CMA sought stories and reflections about art and the museum, inviting community members to submit their own stories or post a short video, image, or story on social media.

December 2020
Achieved the $1 million-dollar goal of the Eric and Jane Nord Family Challenge: The CMA reached the challenge’s goal less than six weeks after the grant was announced in early October. The grant from the Eric and Jane Nord family matched donations to the museum with $4 for each $1 contributed by other donors, with the Nord Family contributing up to $1 million. All funds raised from the Eric and Jane Nord Family Challenge support the ongoing production of free online, virtual, and on-site programs during that difficult time.

Gustave Baumann: Colorful Cuts opens. The exhibition celebrated the 2005 gift to the Cleveland Museum of Art of 65 color woodcuts and 26 drawings by the artist. These works, most of which have never been on view at the CMA, provided a comprehensive survey of Baumann’s long, productive career.

January 2021
The CMA reopened for a second time on MLK Jr. Day, January 18, 2021. The museum honored the day with a virtual Martin Luther King Day program: Becoming a Beloved Community. The Beloved Community is a vision that Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. popularized during the Civil Rights Movement. King’s Beloved Community is a society based on justice, equal opportunity, and loving our neighbor as we love ourselves. On this MLK Day, poets used Michelangelo Lovelace’s painting My Home Town (1998) as a departure point to explore King’s Beloved Community. At first this painting appears to be about racial divide but the figures that come together in the center of the picture suggest an optimistic and hopeful perspective. The program included opening remarks by Reverend Dr. Jawanza K. Colvin, pastor of Olivet Institutional Baptist Church, a museum trustee, and the inaugural chair of the museum’s Diversity and Inclusion Committee. Cuyahoga County poet laureate Honey Bell-Bey and acclaimed poet Orlando Watson recited original poems and moderated a discussion.

February 2021

Stories from Storage opened. The exhibition offered thoughtful and focused examinations of important themes through seldom seen works of art carefully selected by each of the museum’s nearly two dozen curators. It conveyed not a single, linear narrative but multiple stories that complement one another. Stories from Storage featured an anthology of 20 short stories told by the museum’s director, chief curator, curators, director of academic affairs and associate curator of special projects, all of whom communicated surprising new insights about the objects they chose from the CMA’s vaults. Alternately philosophical, humorous, contemplative, playful, and historical, each story revealed a unique element within the museum’s encyclopedic collection, representing human creativity across the globe, from the ancient world to today.

Laura Owens: Rerun opened at Transformer Station. A native Ohioan now living in Los Angeles, Owens returned to Cleveland to develop the exhibition in collaboration with high school students participating in the CMA’s Arts Mastery program, Currently Under Curation.

March 2021

New board member: Manisha Ahuja Sethi was elected to a five-year term as a standing member.

April 2021

Variations: The Reuse of Models in Paintings by Orazio and Artemisia Gentileschi opened. Four years of conservation at the CMA transformed Orazio Gentileschi’s Danaë from a work with yellowed varnish and discolored retouching back to a virtuoso painting featuring crisp drapery and delicate skin tones. The focused exhibition debuted the newly conserved painting. Both Orazio and his daughter, Artemisia, returned to and reworked certain themes and compositions throughout their careers. In the exhibition, Danaë was at the center of five paintings by father and daughter, on loan from museums and collections around the country, that distilled the artists’ capacities to modify and manipulate figures over time in various compositions.

The galleries of contemporary art were reinstalled. The reimagined galleries staged fresh conversations among works in the museum’s contemporary collection, celebrating work by women and artists of color. The redesigned S. Mueller Family Galleries of Contemporary Art included the Betty and Max Ratner Gallery (224A), Toby’s Gallery for Contemporary Art (229A, 229C) and the Paula and Eugene Stevens Gallery (229B).

The Community Arts Center (CAC) opened in the Clark-Fulton neighborhood on Cleveland’s near west side. The CAC houses the museum’s community arts staff and education outreach program, offering opportunities for residents in the neighborhood and beyond to connect with the arts. It features art displays and free hands-on art activities and experiences. The inaugural exhibition, Parade the Circle: Celebrating 30 Years of Art and Community, opened in tandem with the center, featuring a varied collection of puppets, costumes, and masks created by artists and the community that reflects diverse cultures and global art traditions.

Parade the City, an iteration of Parade the Circle, kept the spirit of the annual event alive by pairing local artists with community groups to create celebratory art installations throughout Cleveland at community locations. It featured eight installations created by the artists with the help of eight community groups including Cleveland School of the Arts, Julia De Burgos Cultural Arts Center, Esperanza, Karamu House, Extended Family, LGBT Community Center, Cleveland Public Library’s South Branch, and PIVOT Center for Arts, Dance & Expression.

New Histories: New Futures opened at Transformer Station. The exhibition centered on three contemporary artists—Johnny Coleman (Oberlin, Ohio), Antwoine Washington (Cleveland, Ohio) and Kambui Olujimi (New York, New York)—and their engagement with time and historical revisionism.
